in addition, there is some evidence that environmental triggers, possibly a virus of some kind, may play a part in the development of polymyalgia rheumatica